

Provisional Schedule:
Corpus Linguistics, Past, Present and Potential
University of Leeds
13th May 2022
9.30AM-5.30PM

9AM: Arrivals and setting up

9.30AM: Keynote: Isobelle Clarke, Lancaster University 'Approaching Discourse in Corpora using Multiple Correspondence Analysis'

10.10AM Serge Sharoff: 'Does size matter? Statistics from large corpora'

10.40AM Eric Atwell TBC

11.10AM Coffee

11.30AM Fiona Douglas: 'The divisive language of union from indyref to Brexit'

12.10 Mel Evans: 'Unprecedented communities, discourses, and identities of #LongCovid'

12.40 Richard Badger: 'Transparency and trustworthiness: a study of the UK Government's press conferences on Covid-19'

1.10 LUNCH (including the BAAL SiG AGM)

2.10: Keynote: Dr David Wright, Nottingham Trent University 'Corpora and the evolution of forensic linguistics'

2.50PM: Alison May, Mashael AlAmr, Yan Chen, Maram AlRabie and Min (Kayla) Wang: 'Corpus-based research in forensic linguistics: data, methods, and knowledge creation'

3.20PM: Coffee

3.40PM: James Wilson: '"The corpus class", "from ad-hoc corpora to personalised keyword lists" and "students as linguistic detectives": a look at how IntelliText has been integrated in Russian language teaching at Leeds'

4.10PM: Yen Dang: 'How can corpus linguistics help to tackle the lexical challenge of academic listening?'

4.40PM: Alice Deignan and Duygu Candarli (Dundee University): 'Using corpora to support UK school students'

5.30PM: Close